Thanks for the quick response. Please see if they plan to send out a fire dept. investigator and ask if you can accompany them to see if the 6 or so drums I saw were empty or what was in them and whatever else you can determine regarding any waste releases. Also find out what you can on who could implement some minimal security of the site (closing doors, cover windows, etc.).

I met with the Laramie County Sheriff, Don Hollingshead (Operations Lieutenant), and three other representatives of the Laramie County Sheriff on 4/20/17 at approximately 11:35 AM. Brian Bohlman (AQD) arrived approximately 5 minutes later.

We were allowed access of the site to take pictures by the sheriffs since while we were there it was considered a crime scene and they had jurisdiction. If we wish to access the site again a warrant will have to be issued, which according to Mr. Hollingshead, should not be an issue. EPA still has a valid site access agreement with Jeff Stumpf who is the current owner.

The large main building appeared have mostly smoke damage to the structure. We did not enter the building due to a potentially hazardous air environment. All bay doors are open and the site is not secure. A small amount of e-waste located outside the building was fire damaged. It did not appear that there was extensive damage to the e-waste inside the building but my vantage points limited an accurate assessment.

There was no fire damage to the small building.

Lieutenant Hollingshead indicated that they did not have the manpower or ability to ensure site security. We left the site at approximately 12:15 PM.
